The leading part in the programme was occupied by the choir, who gave an interesting talk on mission work in the early days. George Morden read a good paper on the origin and progress of missionary work.

TYENDINAGA AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY FAIR.

A SUCCESSFUL EXHIBITION.

Although the morning was cloudy and the indications were that it might possibly rain before the day was over, the exhibitors and visitors commenced to arrive at Tyendinaga on Saturday, Sept. 28th, with the opening of the Tyendinaga Fair one of the most important events in this section of the country. By noon the capacity of the stable yards was taxed to its utmost, every available hitching place was utilized in the village, and the fair grounds, which were to be seen on the fair grounds, Secretary Macfarlane was kept busy entering and arranging for his position, he seemed to be everywhere at the fair, and the juries were hard at work to show to the best advantage. He was ably backed by a most capable army of managers and directors, who endeavor ed to see that each exhibitor had equal opportunity in all cases, and to see also the arrangements made for the benefit of the country.

The high quality of the exhibits tested the ability of the judges, but they were equal to the occasion, and their impartiality was well appreciated.

A STRANGE ENTERPRISE.

Of all the strange enterprises to be found in operation that of raising foxes is perhaps the most unique. Class Cole and his wife, the sole inhabitants of the Main Duck, a fine pine forest, live here in summer, but a desolate, dreary place in winter, where the only companionship to be found are the shades of departed scenes who have gone to Davy Jones' locker in that region. Mr. Cole's wife, Mrs. Cole, has gone in for stock raising. Last year he secured two deer, interesting them for breeding purposes, but one die day both deer took to the water and swam ashore. Last spring he had a loose fence, for which they have thrived on green, sleek and fat. The foxes live well on wild ducks and other fowl. Mr. Cole expects to have a large herd of foxes next spring—Whig.

IN THE SOUDAN.

Berlin, Sept. 27.—A despatch to the Gazette came from St. Petersburg, it is regarded as possible, in the light of recent information, that not only the French expedition under Major Marchand, but a force of 1,000 men, including 200 cavalry, is expected that King Mansuk will refuse to relinquish his old claim to the Nile border of his empire, and according may plan his flag and assemble a considerable force of troops opposite Ashdoda.

Sept. 25.—General Kitchener, commanding the Anglo-Egyptian expedition, has returned to Omdurman, having established ports at Fashoda and the Sebit river. The troops did not fight except with a drowsy stealth on the way south, which was captured.

Sukum, Sept. 25.—The only organization in the Khartoum's is the British garrison, which are now in a state of high tension, when an Egyptian force, mustering 1,300, under command of Colonel Parsons, routed 3,000 dervishes, of whom 500 were killed. Three Egyptian officers were wounded and 37 Egyptian soldiers killed and 30 wounded.

London, Sept. 25.—It is reported that the War Office has granted to the British Army a day off each week for furlough in recognition of its bravery at Omdurman. Otherwise the regiment would have gone direct from Egypt to India for a few years' stay.

A committee composed of all branches of the military service are making arrangements to present the regiment with a gold shield commemorating its famous charge at Omdurman.

WANT TO HOLD PHILIPPINES?

Spanish Peace Commissioners Instructed to Fight Hard for Them.

Malib, Sept. 29.—The Cabinet last evening had under discussion Captain General Blas's despatch concerning the American claim in connection with the evacuation of Cuba. Dikka Alvarado, Private Miller was connected with the 2nd Massachusetts regiment of volunteers in the late campaign. The Gazette says:

Private Miller of Company I, who was left at Santiago to take care of sick comrades, and come home, was seen by a Gazette reporter soon after his arrival. Given as his address may be the name of his wife, he is nothing in comparison with his thankfulness to be at home again. Private Miller, in volunteering to remain behind, showed a courage, and an absence of self-sacrifice, equaling that of the Roman soldiers and sons of Sparta of old. In some respects, it was a greater exhibition of courage and sacrifice, to remain in the event of losing a portion of the island, than the most attempted by the United States to claim the right of preference over other powers should Spain desire to sell or cede the Philippines. The Spanish code of ethics requires all such instructions are only ad referendum. Most of the commissioners and attaches speak English.

MR. CALDER NOMINATED.

Mr. Whitney's Curious Attitude Regarding the Gentlemen's Unseating.

Whitby, Sept. 28.—Mr. Charles Calder, ex-M.P.P., was again nominated by the Conservatives of South Ontario at a public meeting held at the Hotel Ontario on Saturday afternoon. Mr. Whitney believes that South Ontario will be the pivotal point of the bye-elections, and brought with him some of the apest speakers of the Opposition. The feature of the Conservative leader's address was the nomination of Mr. Calder, who was anointed by a Goliath conspiracy. He also made his first public statement on the constable case since the decision of the Court of Appeal was made public, and as a protest against the conduct of the Conservative Minister of Agriculture on the success of that party.

The meeting was not largely attended. When it began there were not more than one hundred voters present, with a scattering of ladies in the gallery; but the electors struggled in during the delivery of the addresses, and at the close of the meeting the hall was comfortably filled.

CONTENTMENT.

Within the bounds of this little room,
Whose narrow space holds all my hopes and fears.
For lo, what wonder it how many years,
And in how many places I have been,
There's not an angle now in corner small,
There's not an object—picture, print nor wall.
There's not a hand's breadth span upon the lips.
And like a garden in the sunshine plays
No fairest pleasure can reflect her rays,
And like a gloom and murk pervade I know.
These earthly beauties of my garden fade,
What is it otherwise? When all is said,
I'd not exchange my realm for night below.
—J. W. Schwartz in Globe Review.

A MODERN OFFER.

"For some time," observed Mr. Markham, "I have been beset by the idea of proposing to you."

Miss Greatorex smiled.
"And why have you not?"
"I have been at times half afraid that you might accept," replied the candid young man. "At others," he added thoughtfully, "I have been almost driven into despair from her sleeve. 'I have been much perturbed by the possibility—that certainly, the possibility—that you might refuse.'

"It would be disagreeable to be refused," remarked the lady impersonally.

"That," the gentleman considered, "depends. If I was sure I wanted to marry you, it would unquestionably be disagreeable to be refused."

"You are not sure whether you are in love with me or not?" remarked the young lady.

Markham readjusted his back to the masterpiece and said in a low voice, looking down at the very adjacent brown, bent head:

"I admit I am disappointed. I had no idea that you could be stupid. It is evidently possible."

From the motion of Miss Greatorex's head—as they would say in the old books—he implied a note of interrogation.

"It is stupid not to have grasped the question. I have for quite a long time known that I was in love with you."

"Ever since luncheon?"

"Perhaps not quite so long as that.

But certainly ever since, almost ever since, Lady Greatorex left the room."

The young lady laughed.

"Was my mother such an instance of George Eliot's malign prophet standing behind her daughter and threatening what will be?"

"I merely meant that the presence of a chaperon is incompatible with sentiment."

"I observed the young woman, 'do not mind admitting that I am getting confused. You never told me that for more than 30 years you had adored me' (Mr. Markham's shoulders appeared to deprecate the exaggeration of this rhetoric), 'and a moment ago you seemed much to doubt your love.'

"Thank you," interjected, with some asperity, the lady.

"What I should like would be to have you thus for a time all to myself. You would find me much nicer than you imagine. I have much more 'to' me, as Lady Greatorex and Sir Marmaduke came, too, and my sister came down to do hostesses. We were never alone except once, and then for a quarter of an hour after a hour of mutual endeavoring."

"Thank you," interjected, with some asperity, the lady.

"What I should like would be to have you thus for a time all to myself. You would find me much nicer than you imagine. I have much more 'to' me, as Lady Greatorex and Sir Marmaduke came, too, and my sister came down to do hostesses. We were never alone except once, and then for a quarter of an hour after a hour of mutual endeavoring."

"Well," added the lady, "on one condition I will come. Do not look frightened. I don't mean to insist on a 'prior engagement.' You need not promise to marry me. But I will come for a whole year to Markham if—if I may bring Lord Mendip with me."

"Lord Mendip?" Mr. Markham releashed what he had been holding and laid it flat on the back of the young lady's lap with something of the air wherewith a not a bad arrangement. It is then more a form of business partnership, and now that it has ceased to be inevitable has no special terrors. But you and I have nothing to gain by that. I am exceedingly well off; so are you. I do not need to marry for position; nor do you. We neither of us need to demand blood like Hamlet's aunt. In fine, as they say in the 'Arabian Nights,' you have nothing to gain by me, and I have no material need of anything you can supply to me."

Markham is just as fine a place as Greatorex Abbey, and not a bit finer.

What is the speak of being in love, it is purely a personal sensation. I should like it to become chronic. I really enjoy being in love. But if we got married?"

"You cannot anticipate your love standing that crucial test?"

"I honestly admit that I have my doubts. We live in a straightforward age. Let me make a clean breast of them."

"You mean that you would dislike the idea of being permanently in love with me, said the young lady, who arched her brows like a kitten becoming too general, "though as a temporary sentimental excursion you have not hitherto found it disagreeable?"

"What I find fault with is," he declared, without very directly replying to her question, "that unless one were to marry you one could not do several things one would like. For instance, I would like very much to take you to India and Japan."

"Who?" inquired the young lady, with somewhat startling decision.

"Not," he replied, "till my Oodles, India in the middle of the season you would not enjoy a bit. But I really fear, unless we do get married, the trip is impossible. All the same, I should like to explain the Taj to you, and Shah Alin's mosque at Ahmedabad;—and the Golden Gates at San Francisco; it is strange, but I cannot take you there without marrying you."

"You could take mamma as well, and Aunt Adelia, perhaps."

"That would be difficult. A superior plan for those to whom it commands itself, but personally I should not like it so much."

Miss Greatorex laughed. Mr. Markham left his sequestered seat and took her beside her on the little sofa.

"Are you thinking," asked the lady, "that you would like to take my hand?"

"I have thought that before. I was thinking of taking it. Now, if we were

There was a slight sound behind her.
"Here," remarked the young man,
lowering her head to the suddenly opened door, "comes Lord Mendip him-person."

Miss Greatorex leaped to her feet.
"Don't, for heaven's sake, don't!"

"I did, in a smothered voice. "It was a lie. I did it to see if I could shake you off."

Lord Mendip advanced forward with a keen old look in his faded eyes and a much
"cocked" walk about his head.
"Congratulations, eh? Whom am I to congratulate I think I heard something about congratulations in person."

"Yes, Lord Mendip, I want yours." Mr. Markham said heavily. "I have just proposed to Miss Greatorex, and she has been good enough to accept."

"Lord, how int'resting," cried the old gentleman. "I recollect your father was my fag at Eton—I'm talkin', you know of the year thirty-nine. By Jove, I'm a lucky chap, Markham, and I do recollect you gratin' your father."

with some emotion and sighs again not less heavily.—Black and

Hopeless Discontent:

The gripman on a cable car, having slowed up for a truck that could not get off the track because of the heavy traffic on his right side, began to stamp his gong. The truckman looked over his shoulder, and his mouth moved actively.
No one on the car could hear what he said. But the gripman glanced at the conductor and grimed. Then he rang the bell again. When the gripman had and worked his mouth again, the gripman took up the cable and hit the track a gentle bump. That seemed to infuriate the driver, and he stood up, waved his whip, and obviously he was talking back. The gripman rammed his truck a little harder, then quite hard, and again he winked at the conductor.

"There's fun in every business," said a passenger on the rear platform to the conductor.

"There is in all but mine."

Then he sprang from the platform and ran to the end of the gripman, who was being thrashed by the driver. And a policeman saved the gripman's other eye.—New York Commercial Ad-

FACTS ABOUT HEALTH

It is Easy to Keep Well if We Know How—Some of the Conditions Necessary to Perfect Health.

The importance of maintaining good health is easily understood, and it is really a simple matter if we take a correct view of the conditions required. First, health the stomach promptly digests food, and thus prepares nourishment. The blood is employed to carry this nourishment to the organs, nerves, muscles and tissues which need it. The first great essential for good health, therefore, is pure, rich blood. Now, is not certainly a fact that a person has such a record of cures as Hood's Sarsaparilla? It is little known that there are hundreds of such cures and well today who would have been in their graves had they not taken Hood's Sarsaparilla. It is depended upon as a family medicine and general regulator of the system by tens of thousands of people. This is because Hood's Sarsaparilla makes the blood pure. This is the secret of its great success. Keep your blood pure in good health, and your blood pure with Hood's Sarsaparilla, which absolutely cures all other medicines fail to do any good whatever.

Hood's Pills are the only pills to take.

GOOD CROPS.

The director of the Experimental Farms has very encouraging news from the superintendents of the branch Experimental Farms in Manitoba and the Northwest Territories, where, notwithstanding the unfavorable weather during the season, the crops with quantity and quality is turning out remarkably well. Under date of September 26th, Mr. Angus MacKay, superintendent of the farm at Indian Head, says: "The wheat of this district wheat is turning out even better than expected both in yield and quality. The lowest yield reported is 28 bushels per acre on stable land, while many have over 30 bushels with the same sort of farming. The wheat on summer-fallow land is coming from 30 to 45 bushels, so that taking the whole district there will be an average of from 30 to 35 bushels per acre."

S. A. Bedford, superintendent of the Brandon Farm, writes in a similar encouraging strain, stating that the wheat crop in the Brandon district is proving a much better one than was anticipated.

MRS. HOOOPER ESCAPED.

BECAUSE SHE USED DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS AND SO CURED FEMALE WEAKNESS.

Norwich, Oct. 1, 1898.—J. S. Hooper, wife of Mr. J. Stanley Hooper, of Norwich, Ontario, is a living proof of the unsurpassed value of Dodd's Kidney Pills in the treatment of diseases of women.

Mrs. Hooper was a martyr to Female Weakness and Kidney Disease for twelve years. Norwich, Detroit and Buffalo physicians had given up hopeingly. She then tried Dodd's Kidney Pills. Four boxes cured her thoroughly, and made her as healthy, strong and vigorous as she ever was. Dodd's Kidney Pills are women's best friends.

A Great Naval Duel.

Hereforward—to use Nelson's words—about his own most desperate action—“the most desperate action was only downright fighting,” and great as was Jones’ unquestionable merit as a hander of ships it was downright fighting endurance of the most extreme and individual character that won this battle.

When thus in contact, the superiority of the British eighteen over the Americans twelve, though less than at a distance, was still great, but a far heavier disparity lay in the fabrics of the two ships. Jones’ ship was the very old ship, rotten, never meant for naval use. The Serapis was now, on her first commission. The fight hitherto having engaged the port guns of the latter, the starboard lower gunports were still closed, and from the ships touching could not be opened. They were therefore blown off, and the fight went on.

A novelty in naval combats was now presented to many witnesses, but to few admirers,” quaintly wrote Lieutenant Dale, who was in the midst of the scene below deck. “The results were to bring into the respect of ships to enable the men to load”—that is, the staves of the rammers of one ship entered the ports of the other as the guns were being loaded. “We became so close fore and aft,” reported Pearson, “that the muzzles of our guns touched each other’s sides” and even so, by the testimony of the Lieutenant on the lower gun deck of the Serapis, her guns could not be fully run out owing to the nearness of the vessels.—Captain Mahan in Scribner's.

Men Have Been a Boston Man.
“Here's a story,” says the Kennebec (Me.) Journal, “they are telling a trolley conductor in the summer time of eastern Maine company. There being a slight wait, a certain member of the sex which is not considered eligible for enlistment and may therefore be sat on with impunity got the benefit of his ruling passion. Here is their conversation:

“The Woman—Are you going to the Bangor House?”
“The Conductor—No, madam.”
“The Woman—Is this car going to the Bangor House then?”

“The Conductor—No, madam.”
“The Woman—Well—er—or—is this the car to take to go to the Bangor House?”

“The Conductor—It is, madam. It passes the door.”
“She clambered in, and the villain smiled on.”

Growing Old.

He—Carrie, you don't seem to care so much for me as you did when we were first married.

She—As for that matter, I don't think so much of my hat as I did when I got it just before Easter.—Boston Transcript.

To MR. AND MRS. R. B. SCOTT ON THE OCCASION OF THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING.

On this your Golden Wedding day,

You kindred and your friends unite

To cheer you on your onward way

To that fair home which knows no night.

Your love in useful labor spent,

Inspire our hearts with grateful love;

Long may we have here sweet content.

And then enjoy the rest above,

Through fifty years of wedded life,

Each to the other you have been,

A husband kind, a faithful wife,

Amid the changes you have seen.

And now encircled by your friends,

With sons and daughters by your side,

For you the earnest prayer ascends

That God may still your footsteps guide.

And while your friends this day review

The past you have here freely trod,

May ours match memories ever new.

Increase your earnest faith in God,

Submissive to his gracious will,

May he in you his grace display,

May lie your hearts with gladness fill,

And may your golden Wedding day,

MARY, KNITTING.

Then Mary sits a knitting,
Beside the cozy fire,
With tendering care and happy
With motherhood's desire,
It makes the room seem holy,
A consecrated place,
With the love of the firelight,
That flickers on her face.

The clicking of the needles,
The crumble of the coal,
Mary sits a quiet nurse,
For her to quiet souls,
And when the little mother
Spreads out the soft and warm,
The love of the firelight,
That flickers on her face.

She sits until the twilight
Her snowy weaving blurrs,
And in the crackling shelter
Then Mary's face sinks lower
Unto the little gown
Until she sinks to sleep,
Before she lays it down.

DEATH OF JOSEPH PENNICK.

Joseph Pennick, aged 61 years, died at his home at Milltown on Saturday last, after several weeks intense suffering, which he bore with Christian fortitude. He leaves a widow, three sons and daughters, and the loss of a kind husband and father. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. J. Faull in the Methodist church, Shannonville, on Sunday, and was very largely attended. The following were pall-bearers: Thos. Creepin, Thos. Emmings, A. Palmer, John Emmings, Thos. Leventon, Wm. Leverton.

Mr. Pennick was an earnest worker in the church. At the death of C. E. Clarke, about four years ago, he was appointed chairman of the church during that time, as far as his health would admit, a faithful worker. He will be greatly missed as his earnest Christian character had won him a great many friends.

The two and a half year old son of Frederick Smith, two miles north of Napaneeville, climbed to the top of a tall and drank the contents of a bottle of poison. Death ensued.

Head and Limbs

All Covered With Eruptions—Could Not Work, the Suffering Was So Great—Hood's Has Cured.

"I was all run down with complaints peculiar to my sex, and I broke out in sores on my body, head, limbs and hands, and my hair all fell out. I was under the doctor's treatment a long time without benefit. They called my trouble ectroma. Finally I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and after I had used three or four bottles I found I was improving. I kept on until I had taken several more bottles and the sores and itching have disappeared and my hair has grown out." Mrs. J. G. Brown, Brantford, Ontario.

"I was all run down and had no appetite. I had a tired feel all over. I was very weak. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla. I did not eat and it benefited me so much that I could not be without it." Mrs. G. L. BURNETT, Central Norton, N. B.

MARCHAND'S MISSION.

Paris, Oct. 4.—Major De Bressac, the well known French explorer, speaking on a Sunday meeting at Bordeaux, to welcome Mr. Liotard, who has just returned from the Congo, said that Major Marchand's mission had just crowned a work that had been planned for many years. Major De Bressac was greatly emulous to assist in settling the Nile question. He insisted the neutrality of the Congo waterway which had been regulated by an intervention of the powers. M. De Bressac would do to gratify the act of Berlin, which, he said, had implemented the principles of a new law founded on freedom of trade and free navigation of the great rivers of Africa.

The speech is important as it suggests that France will profess to be the champion of the "open door" in Africa, as Great Britain has done in China.

Columbus when they arrive in Spain from Havana, the Duke of Veragua, replying to an appeal in behalf of Granada, wrote: "I share with you the sentiments respecting the necessity of not abandoning to the usurpers the sacred ashes resting in the Cathedral of Havana, and right resides in me, as the representative of the family of Columbus, has led me to take steps to obtain from the government the desired measures." The Duke added that nothing has yet been decided as to the final resting place of the remains of the great explorer.

An Engineer's Story.

SUFFERED THE PANGS OF RHEUMATISM FOR YEARS.

WAS REDUCED IN WEIGHT FROM 180 TO 130 POUNDS—HIS FRIENDS FEARED THAT RECOVERY WAS IMPOSSIBLE—NOW ACTIVELY ATTENDING TO HIS DUTIES.

Alexander McKenzie is one of the well known residents of Brookwood, Ont., where he has lived for many years. A few years ago it was thought that his great weight would be his bane; but the contraries however, he is now strong and strong, and the story of his recovery is on the lips of almost all the citizens of that burgh. The writer, who has been a patient of his, can not fail to hear of his recovery, and will relate the reporter's proverbial story of news decided to put to the proof the gossip of the village. The reporter visited Mr. McKenzie's home and was introduced to his wife, who was very ill. The wife elicited the information that Mr. McKenzie was not at home, but when informed as to his mission the lady freely consented to tell the reporter of her husband's case. Her story ran like this:—"Mr. McKenzie is 60 years of age, an engineer by profession, and is living on a boat on the lakes. About five years ago he began to show twinges of rheumatism in different parts of his body. For a time he did not know what it was, but it gradually got worse until the pain was such that he was unable to work, and could not get rest at nights. I would have to get up two or three times a night," said Mrs. McKenzie "to try and relieve this intense suffering. Of course he consulted a doctor, but the doctor said that he had sciatic rheumatism. The doctor did what he could for him but without giving any permanent relief. This went on for several years sometimes he would be some better and try to work, then the trouble would come on again and be as bad as ever."

He was pulled down from being a stout man of 180 pounds to about 130, and was so thin and miserable that all who knew him thought it would be but a matter of short time before he would be his grave. For four years he thus drudged along a miserable existence, until in the beginning of 1897 some one recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Tired of medicine, with some reluctance he procured a box and gave them a trial. Almost at once he found them wonderful. He kept on taking them, the improvement continued, and he was soon able to be about. By the time he had taken about a dozen boxes he was free from the slightest twinge of rheumatism and as stout and strong as he had been before. The doctor advised him to continue the use of the pills, and he did so. He has had a good life ever since, and is now in full health. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They give a healthy glow to pale and sallow complexions. Sold by all dealers and postmen.

Rheumatism, sciatica, neuralgia, partial paralysis, locomotor atrophy, nervous headache, nervous prostration, and diseases depending upon humors in the blood, such as scrofulous, syphilitic, etc., all disappear, fail to return, and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They give a healthy glow to pale and sallow complexions. Sold by all dealers and postmen.

At the time of the formation of the town of Egmontville, the town hall, which he left home recently to go up the lakes for the summer, took three boxes with him as a preventative against a possible recurrence of the trouble. Mrs. McKenzie was quite willing that this story should be made public, and believes that she owes her good health to the use of the pills.

At the workshops artisans of various kinds—all patients—were seen busily engaged in their various occupations. The system of receiving and caring for the sick clearly explained. The chemical sewer works, etc., were highly interesting from the standpoint of sanitary science. In the production of steam and hot water for the heating of the buildings and for other purposes, a great economy has been effected by the use of screenings under a forced draft system. The saving is about $5,000 a year.

The laundry is quite an extensive establishment, and Inspector Christie is naturally proud of the metal frames in the drying department, which were designed by himself and now are used almost everywhere.

After partaking of the hospitality of the town, the visitors returned to the city finding that they had expanded their knowledge in a branch of philanthropy in which wonderful advances have been made within the present generation, and better prepared than ever to appreciate problems which the officials, with all their skill and experience, are able only gradually to solve.

—KINGSTON NEWSPAPERS.

In speaking of the improvements made in Campbellford, since the writer's last visit to the town, he said that there was not a single tree cut upon it, and the only houses in the locality were those occupied by Major Campbell and Mr. Cartiday. The latter's dwelling was situated at Bayview, the residence for the successful business men of the town.

John Critchley, the youngest son of John Critchley of Plevna, was badly kicked by a horse, and was sent to the hospital. He was operated on and recovered.

SCROFULA.

"My little boy, aged 7 years and 15 months, was a victim of Scrofula on the face, which all the doctors said was incurable. To tell the truth he was so bad that he had been sent to a hospital. At last I tried a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, and before it was half used he was gaining, and by the time he had three bottles used he was entirely recovered. I cannot say too much in recommendation of B.B.B. to all who suffer as he did." JOSEPH P. LABELLE, Man-wake P.Q., Que.

There can be no question about it. Burdock Blood Bitters has no equal for the cure of Sores and Ulcers of the most chronic and malignant nature. Through its powerful blood purifying properties, it gets at the source of disease and completely eradicates it from the system.

England With the Heavy Hand.

England has inflicted far greater land disasters on her redoubtable neighbor, France, than all the military monarchies of Europe put together. English armies for 120 years ravaged France, while England has not seen the fires of a French camp since the battle of Hastings. English troops have twice taken the French capital, an English king was crowned at Paris, a French king rode captive through London. French emperors in English captivity and his remains were surrendered by English generosity. Twice the English horse marched from Calais to the Pyrenees, once from the Pyrenees to Calais; the monuments of Napoleon in the French capital at this moment owe their preservation from German revenge to an English general.

All the great disasters and days of mourning for France since the battle of Hastings—Tenchelhe, Cressy, Poitiers, Agincourt, Verneuil, Crevant, Blenheim, Oudenarde, Ramillies, Malplaquet, Minden, Dettingen, Quebec, Egypt, Talavera, Salamanca, Victoria, the Pyrenees, Orthez, Waterloo—were gained by English generosity, and for the most part, by English soldiers. Even at Fontenoy, the greatest victory of which France can boast since Hastings, every regiment in the French army was on their own admission routed by the terrible English column, and victory was snatched from its grasp solely from want of support on the part of the Dutch and Austrians—Alison's "Life of Marlborough."

Crushed by Beecher.

Henry Ward Beecher was once approached by a young man who consulted himself very clever.

"Don't you know, Mr. Beecher," said he, "I've been thinking that I would settle down, become myself, and join your church. Now, I like your preaching, but when I go to your church and see such men as old S. and others, grasping skinflints and hypocrites to the core, sitting there in full membership, why, the thing is just a little too much for me, and really," he added, "I cannot join."

"Well, you're right," said Mr. Beecher. "Every church has such men, and I fancy Plymouth is not free from them, and until you speak I have always wondered why the good Lord permitted it. Now, I understand."

"All right," gurgled the young fellow, "I am right up to the dinner light on the question. What strikes you the reason, Mr. Beecher?"

"Well," replied the great preacher, "it is permitted in order to keep just such fools as you out of the churches."

Mr. Melon's Talk.
Mr. Melon is up: "Say, I'm a swinging day! Wish you'd bring me dinner bell, Take in cool me in do well!" (But when Mr. Melon say When I givin' me son say When I passin' long dat way.)

DEATH'S FERRYMAN.

I am a Ferryman, old and gray,
And the river is deep and wide,
And whosoever crosses by night or by day
Can never return, but forever and aye
To the world spoken the bitter word that Mrs. Robson held to her lips. When the paroxysm was over, she lay back speechless, but her eyes were full of questioning.

"Aye, my deary," said the mother.
"Mr. Fryston's gone for him, an' he'll be back to you to be never still."

The waters are cold, and the current is swift,
And the mists hang heavy and chill,
And backward and forward they slowly crawl,
Till the morn comes to break the frost.

The heavens are dark, and the course is long,
But my boat is staunch and true,
And the waves are rough, but my arm is strong,
To the fury that comes the strong.

To the shore, met hid from view.

All are equal who cross with me,
Beggars and millionaires,
Vassal and king, arm and foot,
The maid and her lady fair.

The weary toiler who longs for rest,
Brave youth and manhood proud,
The erring ones with his sins confest,
The old and sole survivor of the past.

And the mother with sorrow bowed.

Some on their journey set forth alone,
With trembling and anxious fears,
Some amid wailing, with sob and moan,
And the heartbreak and bitter tears.

Man brought naught into the world save death,
And caught it to take away;

Naked was he when he first drew breath
And naked with what he comes with death

On the road, mysterious way.

So all are equal whom death sets free,

To cross to the distant strand,

And king and vassal and foot,

Most all share the name of death with me.

—Dr. J. A. Gilbert in Cleveland Plain Dealer

THE COMING HORSE.

The curate sat in old Mr. Robson's chinked parlor, chairing his wavy hair and then as the mistress of the farm paused in her outburst of excited speech. He was married and the father of ten children, but bounteous youthful affection still hung thick about him, for instead of leaving his cup and saucer on the tray, he held them in his lean white hands, crooking his little fingers daintily, while his speech was usually punctuated with many "sweetly pretties" and "passionately fonds," witticisms a good man, according to his lights, and endowed with a certain liking of the dutiful in his fellow creatures.

He had come up by the widow's strength for his daughter was dying, and was sent to the doctor to speak of his child trouble to his kinsfolk who had never viewed her with any courtesy since her marriage to a man aged enough to have been her father.

She was slightly incoherent in her request for advice, but the curate thought he understood.

"Really, Mrs. Robson," he said gently at last, "it is a most painful case. Yes, thank you, another cup of tea—three lumps, yes; I have a sweet tooth. Of course I think that you should have consulted me before, when Hannah was in better health, and then I could have admonished her. Now we can only pray. But the less it is my burden the better it is for her that she should wrest her affections from all unworthy worldliness and look up to the skies, whence comfort."

Mr. Fryston shook his head mournfully. "I've no good news," he said. "Young Mr. Amberstone's away in the south of France with his mother."

Mrs. Robson clutched the bosom of her gown so violently that two buttons flew to the floor.

"Thank you, Mr. Fryston," she said quietly. "You've done all man can."

"I'll pardon me if I go to her—how good you are!"

"Well," she stammered, "where is this?"

MOSQUITOES, CURE.

My occupation is one of great exposure to the weather and I suffer greatly from time to time a bad Asthmatic Cough, so much so that at one time I was compelled to leave the city of New York and go to the country to have Skinner's Balsam of Aniseed applied to my lungs. There is no remedy such as I had which I can confidently recommend except your Balsam.

Her First Order.

She was newly married and did not know a little of the care of a home, and how to keep a home going, and she was given her very first order. It was a crisis, but the grocer was a clever man and was used to all kinds of orders and could interpret them easily.

"I want ten pounds of paralyzed sugar," she began, with a businesslike air.

"Yes'm, anything else?"

"Two cans of condensed milk."

"Yes'm."

He set down "pulverized sugar" and "condensed milk."

"Anything more, ma'am?"

"A bag of fresh salt. Be sure it's fresh."

"Yes'm, what next?"

"A pound of desiccated codfish."

He wrote glibly "Desiccated cod."

"Nothing more, ma'am? We have some nice horseradish just in."

"No," she said. "It would be of no use to us. We don't keep a horse."

Then the grocer sat down and fanned himself with a patent washboard, although the temperature was nearly zero.—New York World.

Kirmess.

In some portions of Germany the kirmess, or church mass, formerly danced in honor of the dedication of a church, is now observed with the special character of a holiday, in the close of the year's labors and is celebrated by three days of music, feasting and dancing with partners chosen or allotted, according to degrees of comeliness, at the preceding May festival.

In southern Germany the end of the harvest is marked by the sickle feast. The last sheaf is carried in triumph to the barn and placed on the floor, while the younger couples dance around it. One half of it is then decked with ribbons and hung aloft, while the other half is burned. Its ashes are treasured as a remedy for rheumatism and are sometimes used in making amulets or charms. The peasants leave for Wodan, or "the old one," a few ears of corn and a small number of apples, it being considered unlucky to strip either field or tree entirely bare.—Lippincott's.

Letters and Trade.

The London Daily News notes the affinity between letters and trade. Charles Lamb and Mill used to adorn the old India House. Austin Dobson, Gosse and Cosmo Monkhouse are in the board of trade. Benjamin Kidd and W. M. Rossetti used to be at Somerset House. Dante Gabriel Rossetti narrowly escaped at one crisis in his career being a telegraph clerk instead of an artist. The postoffice absorbed for many years the superfluous energies of the author of "Retaliation."

When they talked of their Ephapses, Correggio shifted his trumpet and took only snuff.

At these dinner parties, according to Malone, though the wine and the dishes were of the best, there seemed to be a tacit agreement that mind should predominate over body. The table, we are told, though set only for seven or eight, often had to accommodate double that number. There was usually a deficiency of knives, forks and glasses, and the guests had to bowl for more supplies, while the host calmly left every one to shift for himself, though he lost not a word, if he could help it, of the conversation.—London Telegraph.

His Last Chance.

"Did you ever notice," said Mrs. N. Peck, "that about half of the pictures in the photographers' windows are of bridal couples? I wonder why they always rush off to a photographer as soon as the knot is tied?"

"I fancy the husband is responsible for it," said Mr. Peck. "He realizes it is about his last chance to ever look pleasant."—Pearson's Weekly.

HUMAN SACRIFICES

On the Altar of Diabetes, Saved
by Dodd's Kidney Pills, Only.

Hardly a family in the country is free from Diabetes. Great thirst, failing sight, numbness in the thighs, bleeding gums, swollen ankles, emaciation, nervousness, pale or turbid urine, loss of sexual power, decaying teeth, pains in the loins or small of the back, are all positive signs that Diabetes is in the system.

Do you know how it ends? In Death. A premature, horrible, agonizing, painful death. The victim has no peace, no ease in life. "His days are filled with tortures. His nights are filled with terrors. His life is a series of agonies."—The American Activator tells the market gardeners have radishes all through the year, and have little trouble is keeping them from being pitiful or wormy. They spray the leaves freely, and thus check the evaporation which makes the root pitiful. To make the radish grow fast and free from worms they manure with nitrate of potash.

On such land the radish is clear and sweet and will be generally free from worms. Some of the Chinese varieties of radish are particularly adapted to growing in late summer, while there are others that can be kept in good condition until winter by cutting off all the top and keeping them in a cold place covered with enough sand to exclude the air.

HOW GRANT Ran.

In September, 1867, there was a reunion of the Army of the Cumberland at Utica, N. Y., at which President Grant, General Sherman, General Hooker, General Sloane and Governor Seymour were present.

Long and loud cries arose for "Grant! Grant!" who, slowly rising from his chair, expressed his pleasure at being with his friends, but his dislike at being asked to speak and his diffidence in doing so.

"But there are those," he added dryly, pointing to Sherman and others, "who are not troubled with any sort of diffidence."

The three generals present made witty, telling speeches, and then arose cries for "Seymour! Seymour!"

The governor, who had been the defeated Democratic candidate against Grant for the presidency in 1868, came forward and said:

"I think I have some soldierly traits myself. At all events, General Grant, you must acknowledge that in a little more than a month I had a few years ago to speak to the country, and I have had a few more to speak to it again."

This telling allusion to the presidential contest brought down the house. General Grant, convulsed with laughter, rose and bowed his acknowledgments.—Youth's Companion.

THE VETERANS' MEDALS

Ontario, October 18.—The Fenian raid medals for the Canadian veterans are at last in a fair way to be received. This morning Hon. Dr. Borden decided on the day and hour when the medal will be given, and the choice, so that it is probable that they may be here for distribution on May 24 next year.

The medals, which are being made by the Royal Mint, will be given to the veterans who will bear the usual Imperial arms, a long service medal design. The reverse consists of the British ensign floating in the breeze surrounded by a handsome wreath of maple leaves and crossed latitudinally by a straight bar bearing the word "Canada". The name of the recipient will be stamped on the medal round the edge.

As the medal is designed for a general service medal the special applicability will be designated by clasps of which there are authorized bearing the legends respectively of "Fenian raid 1869", "Fenian raid, 1870", and "Fenian raid 1870". The demand for these medals is so great, being more than was anticipated, that it is certain that the vote of $5,000 made last session will be exceeded, but not probably by a large amount.

HIGHER WHEAT PRICES.

Deliveries Continue Large at Northwest and Primary Points—Export Demand Fairly Good—Quotations.

Tuesday Evening, Oct. 18.
Chicago wheat opened strong this morning, but closed with a slight fall, and closed off later on liberal purchases and lighter takings for export. Another bear influence was at work, but the market would prove the largest since 1891. Larger takings late in the day forced the market to give up its gains and to be per bushel higher than yesterday's final figures.

Livestock futures to-day were strong, advanced steadily to 10 cents higher than yesterday, with flour 20 cents higher to 20 cents.

Coughs That Stick.

You don't seem to be able to throw them off. All the ordinary remedies you've tried don't touch them. The cough remedy for you is Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. It loosens the phlegm, allays the irritation, heals and soothes the inflamed lung tissue.

MR. WM. FERRY, Blenheim, Ont., says: "I can recommend Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup as the very best medicine for coughs and colds, sore throat and weak lungs."

A LITTLE WILD APPLE TREE.

There's a little wild apple tree out in the pasture. Crooked and twisted and queer in its shape, and it never lets its long arms at the summer winds sway it. As it were trying its best to escape. I have never found fruit on its gnarled, twisted branches. From underneath its trunk from its length to its feet, But it blossoms each spring with the best of flowers, and its delicate blossoms are sweet! On the north by the orchard the pasture is bounded. There's a bonny apple tree stand in straight rows. You can see that each tree has been carefully planted. And for it it must surely hold how it grows.

But 'tis the wild tree that the "high hole" has chosen! She found such a pleasant place for her nest. This is pleasant—I highly think so!—But the little wild apple tree 'tis the love best! —Margaret Vandegrift in Truth's Companion.

A RHINE STORY.

The Misses Ladford walked across the road from the German station to the small hotel.

"And now," complained the elder Miss Ladford, "I suppose we shall have more unintelligible argument at this ridiculous hotel. Not a soul to speak English or French, and—"

"We shall manage," said her young sister hopefully. The porter carrying their luggage had come to the door and they stepped into a big, square room with a porter covered bar at the side. A few men were playing with grubby cards in a corner. The proprietor shuffled forward and took his pipe from his mouth reluctantly.

"Bob!" cried the elder Miss Ladford. "That's not German," remarked her young sister cheerfully. "Kellner, ein zimmer."

Young Miss Ladford had known the German for hotel proprietor. She would not have called him a waiter. It was unfortunate, because the proprietor had clowned at the word "kellner" and had appeared to be instructing the porter to take the luggage outside. The two ladies stood at each other disinterestedly.

"Can I be of any use?" "Mr. Wallis!" cried the young sister delightedly.

"Mr. Wallis!" remarked Miss Ladford distantly.

In a few words the young man explained everything to the offended hotel proprietor; in a few more words he informed the ladies that he, too, had arrived by the train from Berlin, and that finding the last train for Luxembourg had gone, he had had a few words.

"I am glad you did that," said Miss Ladford.

—had come straight across to the hotel. Mr. Mark Wallis further mentioned that he had ordered supper for one; while the ladies went upstairs to the room of the young man.

"I believe," she said quietly, pulling a blade of grass as they walked along, "that we are going to be very excellent friends."

"I'm so glad!" he cried honestly. "Indeed, I hope that we shall be something more." She did not look him, and he went on. "Do you know, Miss Ladford, I feel very much the want of companionship at home? I'm almost 28, but already I am beginning to dread the possibility of journeying through life a lonely traveler. Twenty eight is not too young for a man to marry, is it?"

She shook her head and put her hand for a moment to her throat. Her thoughts went back swiftly to her first and last proposal. Dear, dear, what a long time ago that was—nearly ten years ago, she feared! She remembered how she had refused the offer because she had an idea that it would be foolish to "say Yes" to the first. And since Miss Ladford remembered this with a little sigh—there had not been a second.

"What I mean to say is," said Mark Wallis, with nervous enthusiasm, "that the time comes to every man when he meets some one he really likes. If he misses that chance, it is quite likely that an exactly similar opportunity may never occur again. And, although it may appear very sudden to you, Miss Ladford, it's not really sudden, you know."

She hesitated a moment and then held out her hand.

"Shall we forget all about it, Mr. Wallis?"

"It will give me great pleasure," said the young man earnestly. And, being in a foreign land where courtly arts can be used without creating derision, he lifted her gloved hand and kissed it.

Such a queer party that night in the bare booted dining room of the sleepy little hotel at Kellner, ein zimmer! To terminate Miss Wallis' part of the game, the Emperor William and Mark Wallis had gone to bed. Mark Wallis had high hopes and said good night, by remarking (as she took the two pairs of shoes from the tired men) that men and closed their door) in a confidential whisper, "Jarring cross"! and disappeared with the air of one who has said a reassuring and a comforting word to English women in a strange land.

"He improves on acquaintance," remarked Miss Ladford.

"With me, dear?"

"With Mr. Wallis, of course."

"Oh!"

"I disliked him extremely when I met him at first."

"Because of that notice?"

"That was the principal cause."

"Musical critics," said the younger lady casually, "have a hard task to perform."

"And some of them hardly perform. But I'm quite sure now, dear, that Mr. Wallis did not mean to be unfair."

Mark Wallis, however, reluctantly, as though trying to persuade his younger sister to abandon an indefensible position in the debate. "So much do I wish, Alice, on the point of view in these matters. Mark Wallis being so strong a Mozart worshiper, you see, he is naturally enough—"

"I—I don't mind," she said unsteadily. —W. Pett Ridge in Woman at Home.

"I—I don't mind," she said unsteadily. —W. Pett Ridge in Woman at Home.

"I hope so," said Miss Ladford.

"You have changed your opinion, dear, about him? I'm so glad." Alice Ladford kissed her elder sister affectionately.

"A German who doesn't change her opinion," said Miss Ladford dogmatically, "is as tiresome as one who never changes her hats. I don't know which is worse."

It seemed that everybody in the little hotel was interested in the following morning. At 8:30 that sound of the train had come up with coffee and rolls, and those they had near to the open window that looked on the square in front of the station. Miss Ladford, in admirable spirits and enjoying now the whole adventure, said Mr. Mark Wallis below and remarked to her young sister that she supposed she must get down in order to make sure about the time of the train. Alice Ladford cordially seconded this resolution and that she for her part would rather stay up stairs and write.

"Train doesn't go till 8," said Mark Wallis cheerfully. "There's nothing to do at Kellner, so I thought of having a look round."

"I am tired of sightseeing," remarked Miss Ladford. "This will have all the charm of novelty. May I come with you?"

"I want you to."

"Doesn't matter about a hat, does it? Nobody knows us."

"Nobody knows us here," he agreed lightly. "In town we are of course important people. At least you are. Critics don't count."

They walked down the principal lane of Kellner, which was its plumply Dickensian model, in odds and ends than it had been, but showing nevertheless a polite attention. Two stout matrons at their doorways remarked to each other confidentially that she was older than he, and after some haggling decided that there was a difference of five years.

"Nearly everything happens for the best in this world," said Mark Wallis. "If that train had not been late last night, it would have been long, perhaps before I had a chance of making my peace with you."

"I cannot permit," said she quaintly, referring to a former discussion.

"As a matter of fact, I particularly want to be on good terms with you, Miss Ladford. I haven't many enemies, and I do not want to think of you as one of them."

"I believe," she said quietly, pulling a blade of grass as they walked along, "that we are going to be very excellent friends."

Our Fall Stock is now complete and we ask the people of Deseronto and surrounding district to call and inspect it. We have a larger and better assorted stock than ever and are offering better values than ever. We have everything to be found in an up-to-date Dry Goods Store.

R. MILLER,

Agent for BUTTERICK PATTERNS—QUINTE LAUNDRY.

WANTED — A Boy to learn the Dry Goods Business.

60 y

Deseronto, Ont., August 9th, 1898

Owing to the Rathbun Company having decided to wind up their Big Store business, I beg to advise you that I intend carrying on the ordered clothing trade, on my own account, at the old quarters, in the Oliver block, Main Street, where I hope to meet all my old customers and all others who can appreciate up-to-date methods and a business like desire to give them value for their money.

The stock will be new and fresh, comprising all the latest novelties in English French and Canadian Tweeds and cloths. We feel assured, that in design, quality and variety, it will appeal to the taste and intelligence of the most exacting.

Our facilities for manufacturing will be such that every customer may rely on prompt and satisfactory treatment.

Reflecting on past experience, we have decided to adopt a "strictly cash system" trusting that all may realize that this course will prove to the advantage of all concerned.

Respectfully Yours,

W.M. STODDART.

The teacher and class meet given to poor children at a mission hall, and hundreds of little ones were assembled at the doors in advance of the hour of admittance, many of them barefoot. Among the number was a small-faced little girl, who seemed less hardened than the cold, for she shivered in her poor jacket and danced from foot to foot on the cold, hard stones, a toy in one hand, a small bag in the other, for a few minutes, and then, with a sudden impulse of prodding, took off his cap, put it down before her, and said: "Ye mawn

THE ROLLER BOAT.

H. B. Knapp, the Roller boat inventor has returned from Chicago, where he has succeeded in forming a very strong company to carry out his roller boat patent. The boat, called the Lakes or B. & T. Transporter Company, and which this winter constructs a large roller boat 120 feet long. Mr. Knapp is sanguine that with the financially strong company formed, the Roller boat will be an accomplishment fact of coming. The boats to be are enormous if the boat is a success, of which Mr. Knapp has no doubt. Over 200,000 bushels of wheat are yearly transported from America to Europe at a cost of about 10 cents a bushel per freight. Six large roller boats can haul a load of common freight in 11 or 12 trips. The lake traffic is greater than a number of the Atlantic coast seaports, and as it is mainly of bulk shipments, as wheat, the enormous carrying capacity of large roller boats will be found unapproachable suited to carrying it.

MUST QUIT FASHODA.
 Resolute Tone of British Papers—Britain's Control of the Nile Must Be Undisputed—War Preparations.

London, Oct. 26.—All interest yesterday centered in the Marquis of Salisbury's address to the House of Commons, in which he announced the publication of the British blue book on that subject. The Conservative newspapers express themselves as being highly pleased with the resolution of the House, but both the Conservative and Liberal papers still consider that the Marquis of Salisbury's attitude admits of negotiations being freely arranged.

The entire press, however, states the result of the possession of British ships coming within the sphere of the discussion.

The St. James' Gazette says: "We are prepared to negotiate the question of the western portion of the Bahr-el-Ghazal district, but we must control the Nile, both banks and watershed, from its source to the sea."

The Globe thinks the Marquis of Salisbury has made it clear that Major-General Kitchener is to be the chief negotiator, adding: "Until that is done there can be no discussion of the French claim in Africa."

The Westminster Gazette suggests a solution that the French be granted "way leave" and "enclave" for commercial purposes in the Bahr-el-Ghazal district.

The French papers yesterday were hopeful of a favorable solution of the dispute to be found.

Active War Preparations.

The English newspapers are full of naval particulars, but the only fresh development is an order received at Portsmouth to prepare for the ships of the fleet and the reserves for the defense of the country. Eight additional warships were in consequence commenced, including yesterday morning and working parties were immediately placed on board the other remaining.

An interesting feature of the Fashoda situation was the appearance yesterday evening on the stump of Lieut. Winston Churchill, the son of Lady Randolph Churchill. The Lieutenant, who has just returned from the Soudan, made an eloquent speech to the House of Commons, which included his mother. His resolution to the Government not to yield was received with ringing cheers.

* * * * * FRENCH YOUTH BOOK.

Paris, Oct. 26.—A small yellow book, which the part French took in the Spanish-American war was published yesterday. It comprises seventeen of the documents, and consists of a dry record of the exchange of despatches with Madrid and Washington while arrangements were being made for the mediation of France.

The Chicago and Liverpool Wheat Markets Set the Exact of the Abatement of the War-Scare—Prices.

Tuesday Evening, Oct. 26.—There was no change yesterday owing to the abatement of the war-scare, but the world's wheat strength to-day failed to build up the strength that characterized yesterday's market, and was even very strong this morning at an advanced price, a penny over night, but eased off in the afternoon, and closing unchanged to 14d per cental higher than yesterday's final figure. Soft wheat, however, rose to 14d per cental, and hard wheat advanced 3 cents, and wheat to 25 cents.

Chicago.—The market opened steady and continued so all day, closing at a decline of 1d per cental for all deliveries, as compared with the previous day, and realizing realized on their purchases of the last two days. About 80 loads were reported working for delivery, and the day has been the strength of cash wheat, as compared with futures.

WELL KNOWN VIOLINIST

Travelled Extensively Throughout the Provinces—Interesting Statements Concerning His Experience.

STELLARTON, N.B.—James H. Murray, a well known violinist, of this place, who has traveled extensively throughout the Provinces, makes this statement:

"I was running down in health and my weight fell off from 175 to 150 pounds. Prescriptions did me but little good. My trouble was caused by a dyspepsia. I was well in Hood's Sarsaparilla and after taking two bottles I was greatly helped. I am as well now as ever in my life, and have increased in flesh so that I now weigh 177 pounds. I am well known in this part of the country, having followed my profession, that of a violinist, for the last 25 years. I gladly tell my friends what Hood's Sarsaparilla did for me. Before I began taking the medicine I did not have any dyspeptic trouble but all is changed now, my dyspeptic trouble perfectly cured!" JAMES H. MURRAY.

N. B.—Please decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, do not be induced to buy any substitute. Be sure to get Hood's.

MISSIONARY BEES.

W. D. Livingston, Frankville, Ont., harvested 1,800 pounds of dark honey and had 1,700 pounds of dark honey from forty beehives (spring count) and had an increase of twenty-three colonies. At the beginning of the bee season he "made up his mind" to set aside the first swarms and give them off on Sunday and give the bees to the poor. And what do you think was the result? Why he extracted eighty two pounds from this young swarm, and it cast a fine swarm besides.—Athens Reporter.

MOSQUITOES.

The following tip is for those who are worried by those very troublesome creatures, mosquitoes:—"Throw a bit of alum, at the size of a marble, into a small bowl of water, and wet the hands and face and any exposed part, especially with the fingers, until the mosquito is driven away. They hunt about a little and disappear. I never had any occasion to use a mosquito curtain, and am glad to think that I can perhaps benefit others (travellers in particular) by this little bit of information."

FOR SEEDING PLANTS.

A plant box has been invented and patented for the purpose of raising seedlings and young plants. These boxes are cut and folded from one sheet of paper in such a way that they can be put up and down in a small space. The seeds of plants that will not stand transplanting can be raised in them early in the season in the house. When warm enough in the spring, the paper boxes are planted out in the garden where the plants are to grow. The boxes are easily torn open at the bottom, or if simply buried they will rot, and the tender plants will keep on growing without being checked.—Housekeeper.

FOR YEARS THIS TROUBLE BAFFLED PHYSICIANS' SKILL—NOW UNDERSTOOD AND EASILY CURED—THE RESULT OF SCIENTIFIC RESEARCH.

There can be no little doubt but that the oldest municipal records now in this province are the minutes of the early "town meetings" held in Adolphustown, Lennox county. Fortunately these records are yet to be examined in view of the fact that over a period of over half a century—from the time of the first meeting held on March 6th, 1792, to the establishment of the townships councils in 1849. They are now to be examined in detail by the empire loyalist pioneers of those days, so systematically kept and so well preserved, that they may be well accepted as a model for our municipal records.
